JAPANESE LAND
TROOPS NEARER
INDIAN SHORES

Large Force Also Assembled for Renewal of Attack on Australia.

By The Associated Press
Japanese sea-borne troops moving closer to India were reported today to have landed at the northwest Burma port of Akyab, only 100 miles from the Burman-Burma frontier, as prospects for isolating India's 390,000,000 on one side of the United Nations got a sudden brightening turn.
A Chinese spokesman in Chinkiang said the Japanese landed at Akyab under the protective covering of a force of mines and destroyers.
Akyab is only 350 miles across the upper bay of Bengal from Calcutta.
Besides heightening the threat of a Japanese invasion of India, landing directly imperilled the rear of British imperial lines now stretching the rich central Burma oil fields.

Plan New Attack
Meanwhile, dispatches from Australia indicated that Japan's main forces in the southwest Pacific waited in their attempted westward drive in New Guinea, preparing to launch a seaborne attack on the key allied base at Port Moresby, only 300 miles across the Torres Strait from Australian itself.
The Sydney Sun declared such an assault was "suggested by recent movements of enemy ships, which are being constantly attacked at Lae and Salamaua by the allied air forces."

The Sun and Salamaua lie on the northeast coast of New Guinea, less than 200 miles above Port Moresby.

The Sun's correspondent at United Nations headquarters said eight fully equipped Japanese divisions—between 120,000 and 150,000 troops—were massed in Java and at Singapore awaiting the signal for Japan's next major offensive.

The enemy forces were said to include large numbers of paratroopers.

The newspaper also reported that the Japanese were receiving "considerable" aerial reinforcements threatening to challenge the air superiority won by United States and Australian fliers in the battle for the approaches to Australia.

A British broadcast said American and Aussie fliers had destroyed or crippled 96 Japanese planes with a loss of only 12 of their own since March 10.

Night Attack on Darwin
Wary of the stiff allied fighter defiance, Japanese planes made their first night attack on Darwin, Australia's north coast port, last night, after suffering heavy losses in previous daylight raids.

On the critical Burma front, British headquarters reported no

Hope Still Held for Success of Mission.

By The Associated Press

NEW DELHI, INDIA, April 2.—

Sir Stafford Cripps pumped new life today into the prospects of India accepting Britain's offer of post-war dominion status, after all but a glimmer of hope had vanished for the mission.

Announcing that he was prolonging his stay "a short time," Cripps said that "points of difficulty are coming down to very narrow limits and with good will we may be able to solve the difficulties."

The implication was that Britain, which had submitted her to as a basis of all-or-nothing, had modify her terms lest the whole scheme be doomed.

Whether India, already under the shadow of Japanese invasion

MILK SERVICE

Moores & Ross Workers Stage
Walkout; Ask Pay Increase and Closed Shop.

About 2,300 Marion families were left without milk and dairy products this morning as the result of a walkout of 18 truck drivers and plant workers of Moores & Ross at 142 Olney avenue at 12:30 a.m. today.

The employees are all members of the Dairy Workers Union local 1045 of the C.I.O. David Ebersole, president and spokesman for the local union, said the union had come to agreement on terms.

EUROPE—German war plants hit by heavy RAF bombing raids. London admits 15 planes lost. Eleven ships in dramatic dash for six weeks; asking for an increase of 50 cents a day and a closed shop contract.

Ebersole said the company had refused both requests, stating that an increase in pay would necessitate an increase in consumer price of milk. Milk now sells for 12 cents a quart. He added that price of milk was increased sometime ago from 11 cents to the present 13-cent level, but company employees did not receive an increase in wages. He said the increasing cost of living made additional pay necessary.

Six-Man Shifts
Three shifts of six men each are picketing the plant today. On each shift two men patrol the front, and two others are stationed at the rear of the plant. Two others patrol between front and back entrances.

The message, on crest of stationery from Buckingham Palace and signed "George, R.I.", follows:

"The Queen and I offer you our heartfelt sympathy in your great sorrow."

"We pray that the Empire's gratitude for a life so nobly given in its service may bring some measure of consolation."

The family also has received a letter from the minister who officiated at the filer's funeral in Marham, Norfolk, England, in which he stated that the RAF's private cemetery where Maskill is buried is in a "typical old world English village." The American Red Cross in London wrote that a representative had gone to Marham to visit the grave, but the London headquarters had not yet received word of Maskill's death in time to send a representative to the funeral.

Settlement of the dispute will be made through the Marion plant, and not through the Moores & Ross home office in Columbus, as previously stated by members of the union. Mr. Lennitzer said.

C. W. DeNucci, bargaining agent and organizer of the local union, expected here sometime this afternoon to try to reach a settlement between the union and the company.

Draft Boards Post
New Order Numbers

Marion draft boards today announced master lists of the last registration are completed, and that local order numbers may be ascertained by calling at the board office. (Master lists, including local serial and order numbers, are also on file in the news room at the State office and these numbers may be learned by calling there.)

Board clerks said local order numbers will not be sent out until the new occupational questionnaires are mailed. They said the questionnaires have not yet been received from state headquarters.

26 Against the Axis: 25UNION OF SOUTH AFRICA

—A school for pilots established by Henry the Navigator, great Portuguese

pioneer, made possible the discovery of Cape of Good Hope in 1487. First used by the Dutch as a convenient stop for fresh water and fresh meat for India-bound traders, in 1618 the shipwrecked crew of the Haarlem thrived there so well while waiting five months to be rescued, that they prevailed upon the Dutch to colonize the southern tip of Africa.

The English came 150 years later, seized the cape and after the Napoleonic war ended, purchased the cape and Dutch Guiana for 16 million pounds. The Dutch settlers who had moved north from the cape to the Vaal, Orange Free State and Natal to get room for their great cattle herds, moved farther out; irked by British government they resisted encroachment and in the middle 19th century the long Boer war started. Gold had been mined but in 1867 discovery of the diamond fields near the Orange river started South Africa's prosperity; it has reached a point today where gold and diamond mines are air conditioned for improved working conditions. Nearly 35 per cent of the world's gold supply comes from this richest gold and diamond country in the world. In 1938 the union's mines produced 1,238,-

008 carats of diamonds. In 1910 Transvaal, Cape of Good Hope, Orange Free

State and Natal formed the Union of

Rodnor Man Urges Students To Learn To Shear Sheep

By Associated Press
APR. 2—Ohio students are being sheared and taught how to shear sheep. Farmers unable to recruit extra help may have to cut their shearing season short, Welsh said. He also reported that many Ohio farmers were being urged by western sheep growers to speed up their cutting season and help get out a bumper wool crop in the west.

Welsh said all sheep raisers were exhausting every effort to help the army and navy. Farmers already having a lack of labor on supply a great demand for wool.

On nearby Rodnor, the Ohio Sheep Station, said that farmers were receiving for the army and navy.

28 AXIS SUBS SUNK BY U.S.

Speed Anti U-Boat Campaign
To Meet Expected Spring
Offensive.

By The Associated Press
WASHINGTON, April 2—America's anti-submarine campaign is being stepped up rapidly to meet an expected all-out summer drive by 300 to 400 U-boats, reliable sources said today.

The navy announced late yesterday that 28 axis submarines had been sunk or presumed sunk by U.S. forces thus far. Naval observers said, however, that the rate of destruction was still too low to check the German drive. They gave this picture of the situation:

Germany had at the very least 120 ocean-going submarines before Dec. 7 and 180 more building for service by mid-summer. New evidence indicates that this figure is ultra-conservative, and salvaged parts of destroyed submarines show the Germans have developed very rapid methods of construction.

Casualties Heavy

Although Germany has suffered heavy U-boat casualties thus far, the rate of sinking has not slowed the present U-boat campaign and would be of dubious effectiveness against a more intense drive.

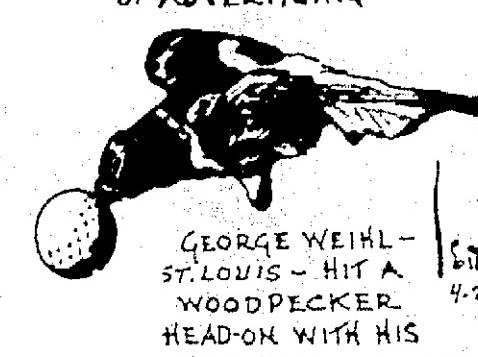

Even so, the Germans have failed to divert U.S. naval strength from more vital warfronts to form convoys in American waters. The number of merchant craft sunk off the Atlantic and Caribbean coasts is approaching the 80 mark, but this rate might prove far from crippling in view of the tremendous ship-building program and development of land transportation facilities.

The United States is making large increases in patrol forces, particularly in the air and is developing new methods of locating and destroying U-boats. Placing army planes on the patrol under command of the navy has stimulated the submarine hunt. Further large increases in the patrol await only the delivery of anti-submarine craft and the training of crews.

Real Fight Starting

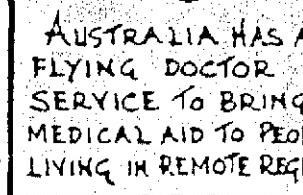

Naval observers emphasized that while the battle of the American coast is far from won, it is also far from lost. The real fight is just beginning.

Of the total of 28 axis submarines announced sunk or presumed sunk, seven were in the Pacific. Donald Francis Mason, a 23-year-old Rochester, Minn., naval flier emerged as one of the heroes of the preliminary campaign.

Mason is the Atlantic pilot who recently reported "sighted sub, sank 'em!" The navy added enough words to that report to explain that Mason spotted a submarine cruising at periscope depth, dived and dropped two bombs from a few altitude, and blew the sub partly out of the water.

On a later patrol Mason blew up another submarine with depth charges. He has been awarded a Gains in the principal cities were led by Akron's 29 per cent. Canton was second with 16 per cent.

Transportation for War Industry Workers Is Big Problem in Ohio

Street Cars Are Wheeled Back Into Service and School Buses Used To Help Meet Emergency.

Growing was induced by increasing number of automobile drivers. Transportation department has been told to tell what is being done to help workers to get home.

— THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
COLUMBUS, O., April 2.—Retiring street cars and the busses and pressing them into service at odd hours to carry Ohioans to and from work.

City officials and transportation superintendents are working night to keep up with the demand for common carrier service in the vicinity of war factories running 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

Still, the traffic crush is yet to come, a survey by the Associated Press indicated today. Prospects that it will be met successfully, at least generally.

Although the war department considers information on the exact density of highway traffic in war industry areas a military secret, use of some roads has at least doubled since the national production program got under way more than a year ago.

Large Ohio cities report up to 25 per cent increases in bus and street car usage by workers, many of whom have stored their automobiles because of car and tire rationing.

Here are some high spots of the survey:

CLEVELAND—20-25 per cent gain in Cleveland Railway Co. business by next Oct. 1, expected, or 58,000,000 more passengers than the 353,857,707 carried last year; new $25,000,000 bomber factory and other new plants must be served by buses; January bus traffic was 31.86 above same month of 1941 due chiefly to new routes.

COLUMBUS—every available piece of equipment in use by Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. transportation division carries 200,000 to 240,000 fares daily, or 15 per cent more than a year ago; surprising few riders on new bus line to Curtiss-Wright airplane plant.

CINCINNATI—Cincinnati Street Railway Co. carried 14,592,452 persons in January and February against 12,777,357 in corresponding 1941 period; had 80 more coaches and 30 trolley buses in order with delivery hoped for this summer.

Akron—Traffic on Akron Transportation Co. lines 20 per cent higher than a year ago, but 50 new buses and 12 trolley buses recently put into service; company officials expect development of airplane and shipyards industries to overload transportation later in year; police department estimates 15-20 per cent decrease in rush hour traffic because of auto and tire shortage.

DAYTON—Addition of thousands of employees by Wright and Patterson army air fields has created bus problem there; city trolley coach use increased.

YOUNGSTOWN—Municipal railway carried 3,475,420 passengers in February or 13.38 per cent more than in same month a year ago. Penn-Oho coach lines business doubled in a month on run from Youngstown to Ravenna distance plant.

TOLEDO—February passenger traffic on buses and street cars

What's a Soldier Worth?

SENATE approval for raising the pay of soldiers, sailors, marines and coastguardsmen was unanimous. Few congressmen would dare to make an issue of so touchy a matter.

There is, nevertheless, an issue to be made. Once the pay question has been opened, in fact, the issue can't be avoided. What's a soldier worth? If $21 a month for a recruit is too little, is $12 enough?

Obviously, the question can't be answered. There isn't any answer. It is possible to make a case for paying career soldiers and officers in approximation of a living wage in civilian life, but not for paying millions of drafted men by the same standard.

There are men in the army who commanded as much pay in one month while they were civilians as they could expect to draw in 15 years of army service. There are men in the army whose service will mean a loss in prospective earning power of more money than their commanding general makes. There also are men in the army who were unemployed when they were drafted. It is a civilian army, drawn from all walks of life. Its service isn't measurable in money, as the service of the enormous standing army of Russia is measured, for instance, but only in results. No government on earth can give a man's family enough money to compensate for his loss in battle, or even for his absence in a training camp. The pay of soldiers in the United States army has been nominal, not because the government was stingy but because the impossibility of paying a man what it is worth to face death and hardship was recognized.

It will be a sign of generosity if pay rates for military service are raised; the cost, while it will be large, is of small consequence. But any congressman who imagines that a man can be paid for war service is guilty of a ghastly misunderstanding of his countrymen's attitude toward the sacrifice millions of them now are making. It can't be measured in dollars.

All Quiet—Again

AMERICANS who saw "All Quiet On The Western Front" are stirred deeply by the conscientious objection of Lew Ayres to playing the real life role that established his ability as a moving picture actor. It has been a long time since Erich Maria Remarque and the other disillusionists of the post-war years seemed to have discovered the ultimate truth about war.

Their impact was tremendous. It was part of the mental growth of the generation that produced them—a growth that now is in another phase that might be called the disillusionment about the disillusionment. Actor Ayres, acknowledging that his experience in "All Quiet" affected his point of view, believes he would be a hypocrite if he were to do something he didn't believe in doing. He forgets, or possibly does not realize, that hundreds of thousands of young men are just as opposed to war as he is, but are going through with their part in it, nevertheless, because they are convinced it is the only way to save what they cherish and want to bequeath to their children.

When this war is over and it is all quiet again, when the dead have been buried and the battlefields are covered again with greenness, perhaps there will be another period of disillusionment. But there will be, also, as there was before, a faith loosing to be tarnished by the corrosion of post-war despair—a faith that will enable those who fought for what they knew was right to keep on believing in their convictions, undismayed by the bitterness of those who ask, "What was gained?" Perhaps nothing will be gained, but almost certainly something will be preserved, if it be only the right of a conscientious objector to ponder.

Could Be

IF THIS hasn't been pointed out before, some attention should be given to the fact that public squawking about paying through the nose for war production began to bother congressmen just before the deadline for income tax payments.

Back in the lush days when income taxes were paid by the rich while the middle class and the underprivileged third hollered for joy, cynics used to point out that things would be different if almost everybody had to pay a little income tax.

Specifically, the argument used to emphasize that there never would be any economy in Washington as long as a majority of voters were kidding themselves about bloated bondholders paying the freight. In other words, taxpayers in general had to be brought to their senses.

When that happened, they would quit yelling for more gravy and start demanding more economy. Woe to congressmen who voted to throw around the people's money. Their constituents would watch them like hawks—or like the big taxpayers always have watched tax spenders.

That was the theory of the thing. Make everybody feel a sense of participation in the financial operations of government. Could it be that the theorists were right for once and that sometime during the process of laying it on the line for the income tax collectors a million or so who never had squawked before decided to write to their congressmen about watching pennies? Could be.

News Behind the News

Ship Sinking Provides Evidence of Efficient German Spy System.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The surprising discovery of two American ship survivors that a Nazi U-boat commander knew the contents and destination of their disabled freighter was no surprise to those officials here.

That government has known for some time the existence of an elaborate German spy system reporting to Berlin speedily and effectively on American ships.

The system is working in such an open field and was organized with such usual German thoroughness that it has been found difficult to smash.

The FBI raided the German Seamen's home in Hoboken last Saturday and found again how lone nois was being sent out.

One described as a "diathermy machine" was seized along with 71 messages.

This is a piece of common electric apparatus, capable of creating high frequency oscillations which could be heard as far away as Germany if proper reception through similar sets had been provided there as it no doubt has.

The apparatus which can make intelligible short wave vibrations under expert handling, has been sold commercially throughout the country for therapeutic treatment of skin tissue by heat. You could buy them anywhere.

A number of Japs on the Pacific coast seem to have suffered the same fate as the Nazi seamen. These machines were first discovered in their homes.

But the problem would be difficult to meet, even if there were not so many of these machines in private hands. The maritime commission here operates our ships, but the private companies and the hiring halls employ the seamen. The government therefore has no control over who is to be employed.

Mines

Not all the ships that have gone down have been torpedoed. One large tanker ran into one of our own mines, thereby creating quite a stir in official navigation circles.

To escape a gale off Hatteras, the tanker decided suddenly to seek port. Without a special pilot it struck into the mine fields and the front half of the ship was blown off.

Official accounts have listed the damage as due either to a torpedo or a mine, but subsequent comment of the crew left no doubt as to which it was.

No other ships will enter ports without harbor pilot unless the emergency be great.

MacArthur and "Old Tom"

The Combination Was Obviously Inevitable.

By DON WHITEHEAD
Wide World Writer

NEW YORK, April 2.—It was just about inevitable that "Old Tom" Blamey should team up with General MacArthur to lay the groundwork for the United Nations' offensive in the southwest Pacific.

He's toughed a lot of battles in many lands, this chunky, bullet-headed Anzac who has been placed in command of the Australian and American ground forces under MacArthur.

He's smelled the smoke of battle from front-line trenches, he helped plan and direct the big Allied offensive that broke the Hindenburg line in 1918; he tried to stem the Nazi tide in Greece and Crete with pitifully outnumbered troops.

Now this 58-year-old soldier, Lieutenant General Sir Thomas Blamey, is in the biggest campaign of his long military career—against an enemy threatening invasion of his homeland.

It's a tough job they've given this one-time schoolteacher, but then Australians will tell you that Tom Blamey is a tough gent, a man who doesn't direct a battle from the textbooks but from experience gained on the firing line.

The bitterest job he ever had was to send his Aussies into Greece, sons of the men he had campaigned with a master of a century before in the first World War.

But he told them "Anzacs, set your teeth and be worthy of your fathers."

Wavell's Chief Aid

Returning from the middle east last fall where he had been General Sir Archibald Wavell's right hand man, Blamey told his countrymen of the story of Greece and Crete in language resembling MacArthur's lingo for phonemaking:

"And so from the snows of Parnassus and from Olympus, and from the icy winds that swept down from the mountains, our soldiers retreated, fighting steadily and courageously."

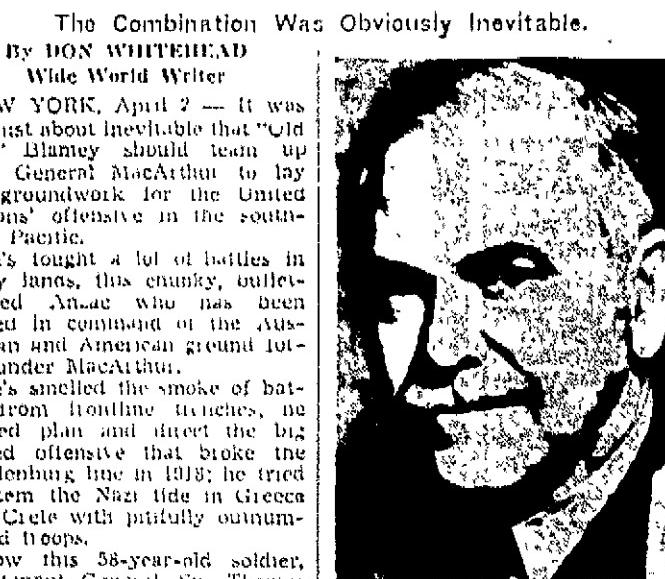

"Hard pressed at Peneus, pressed at Turnava and Demaku and finally out to the position at Thermopylae. Two divisions—one Australian and one New Zealand, against five to six German armored divisions; armored and mountain divisions, motorized divisions and infantry."

"The task was too much, and it was decided to withdraw the troops."

Blamey castigated his countrymen for their complacency with typical disdain for his own personal popularity:

"To come from that atmosphere and its scenes back to Australia gives one the most extraordinary feeling of helplessness. You are like . . . a lot of gazelles grazing in a dell on the edge of a jungle, while the beasts of prey are working toward you, apparently unseen, unnoticed. And it is the law of the jungle that they spring upon you, merciless."

Promotion followed quickly for Blamey. Superiors admired his energy, coolness and technical skill. Later he became the right

Unified Control Over Sea Transportation

Problems Urged for U.S.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

IT IS clear to every one who knows the situation, and very clear indeed to our enemies, that our critical weakness is no longer in the production of war materials but in transportation. We are able to raise armies and to our enemies is, so far as we are concerned, directed against our

of transportation.

This is the net effect of Japanese strategy against the United States. The blow at Pearl Harbor, the seizure of Wake and Guam, the blockade of the Philippines have cut us off from the direct route to the Far East. The Japanese threat to Australia is in all likelihood designed to force us to invest shipping and naval power in an immensely long and strategically unprofitable line of sea communications. The Japanese conquest of the oil of the East Indies affects us in that it compels us to carry oil across the vast spaces of the Pacific. The conquest of the rubber territory is a paralyzing blow at our internal system of transportation.

Survey Shows House Favors Levy on Sales

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
WASHINGTON, April 2—Representative Disney (D-Oklahoma) said today a survey he had made showed that "an overwhelming majority" of the house would vote for a sales tax rather than for big increases in individual and corporate taxes proposed by the treasury.

Asserting that congress could not raise $7,000,000,000 from corporations and individuals, Disney said in a statement that "we will be compelled to go to a sales tax much as we dislike it."

Disney is a member of the house ways and means committee which has been studying revenue sources the past month.

layment, like myself, is warranted in insisting again and again upon the affair of the Sea Otter ships. It is not for the purpose of promoting that particular ship; only persistent experiment and fair trial can determine the intrinsic value of the Sea Otter. Those who have studied the affair of the Sea Otter are determined to keep calling attention to it because it has demonstrated so clearly that there is in shipping no way at present to get persistent experiment with a radically new idea. The Sea Otter may not be able to fulfill the hopes of its inventors. But what is certain is that the invention has not been treated as, for example, new airplane designs are treated at Wright Field—by men who understand how scientific experiments should be conducted and how inventions are developed.

Sea Otter Case

What happened to the Sea Otter in the navy department and in the maritime commission is proof positive, I submit, that no really new invention, better than the Sea Otter perhaps, is likely to be welcomed and given a proper test. Yet if we do not use our ingenuity in the field of transportation, we shall lose the war. For our capacity to construct conventional ships is loaded to the limit, and supplementary unconventional means of transportation must imperatively be found. The affair of the Sea Otter demonstrated that one is fiercely determined to find these supplementary means of transportation. I think I can prove that no such fierce determination exists.

The Sea Otter, whatever its final merits, is not in any sense a crackpot idea; it has the support of some ship designers of proved competence, of some shipbuilders of proved competence, of at least one large shipping company of competence in the handling of cargo ships, and of many naval officers who have studied the submarine menace in this war and in the other wars.

Yet when this invention was accepted for experiment, what happened? The maritime commission would not touch it. So it was turned over to the secretary of the navy, who undoubtedly hoped it would succeed. He turned it over to civilians in the navy department.

Two items enable one to judge their capacity to conduct a scientific experiment. One, the naval officer who developed the idea of the ship and was placed in command at the trial run, was forbidden to be present when his ship was being constructed. Did any one ever heard of such goings-on as that?

Second, the navy department civilian who was in charge of the project and made the final judgment against it had never seen the ship. Can any one imagine Henry Ford deciding about a new model without ever taking the trouble to go to see it?

It cannot be said too strongly or too often that the war cannot be won if in the crucial matter of transportation, there is this sort of obtuse obstruction. There is needed a fresh and powerful mind in these things to produce a different atmosphere, to stake these

SUSPECT IN KILLING OF THREE IS SEIZED

Michigan Man Charged with Slaying Employer.

FONTIAC, Mich., April 2.—State police climaxed the melodramatic case of the killing of three farmers by capturing a suspect on a dark road far from the scene of the deaths early today and announcing his confession.

Trooper Roy Perkins, one of the arresting officers, said 20-year-old Dominic Piccone, ex-convict two weeks out of prison, admitted shooting one farmer to death in vengeance and killing two others to protect his flight, meanwhile seizing a fourth man to help him flee.

Within a space of 24 hours two Oxford, Mich., farmers, Cassius E. Barber, 71, and Romaine C. Potter, 75, were slain with rifle fire in their neighboring homes, and Carl McKenzie, 43, was killed on his farm at Concord, 90 miles distant.

Formerly charged with murdering Barber, his former employer, and wanted as suspect in the other two shootings, Piccone had been sought since Tuesday night. It was then that Barber and Potter were killed.

Early today a state police car containing Trooper Perkins and companion officers was cruising in the vicinity of Ossineke, a Genesee county town some 45 miles from here. A car drove by with its tail light out.

A few minutes later, Perkins said, the short-wave radio from headquarters instructed them to look for such a car as one suspected to be bearing Piccone and Roy Thorpe, 36, a neighbor of the Oxford victims who was believed being held as a hostage by the killer.

Trooper Perkins said the car was overtaken and stopped. Piccone was seized without a struggle and both he and Thorpe, whom Perkins described as "very nervous," were returned to Pontiac.

"Lady Aussie" Tells Women of U. S. How Australia Girds for Total War

Mrs. Evatt Arrives After Dramatic Trip from Land Down Under.

Following is the first interview given in this country by Mrs. Herbert Evatt, wife of Australia's foreign minister and attorney general, who has arrived on a special mission to America.

By MARGARET KERNODLE
Wide World Features Writer

Meet Australia's woman of the hour, Mrs. Herbert Evatt. Her unheralded arrival in America with her husband, Australia's foreign minister and attorney general, holds as much drama for Australians as did the landing of Mrs. MacArthur in the land down under.

When I met American-born Mrs. Evatt in her New York hotel suite shortly after she stepped into this country from an exciting (censored) trip, she made it clear that American women can expect to take an increasingly important part in this state of total war.

She has golden blonde hair, dimples and dignity.

She is vice president of the Women's Auxiliary National Service of Australia's capital, Canberra, and has been serving as liaison officer between the WANS and the government. Her political knowledge she gained from her attorney general husband. Before the war, her main interests were politics and painting.

Good Luck Charm

For good luck on her trip she wore a heavy silver pin bearing her husband's family crest with the motto "Be Brave and Wise."

All Australian women are now registered for war service, says Mrs. Evatt. This registration provides a permanent list from which workers can be selected as needed, come along. Some work full time, some part time, but Mrs. Evatt, who was working herself when she got an hour and a half notice to leave for America, says every woman is doing some kind of war work. Everyone, she insists, is ready to move instantly.

All she brought with her was a small handbag containing lingerie, gown, toothbrush, one thin frock, aspirin, a tiny first-aid kit, powder and lipstick. She forgot her cold cream. She shopped for one smart but simple evening gown in New York.

The most important job of Australian women is keeping the lines of communication open. Bikes are the thing wherever bombs might fall.

Youngsters Help, Too

MRS. HERBERT EVATT
Dimples and Dignity

Other Australian youngster is busy with junior Red Cross schedule; is he old enough to join the Bike Corps? Their son, Peter, is in the armed forces.

"Until recently the hardest thing we had to do was to live in the dark," says Mrs. Evatt. "Now there's a new teaser: to tackle a gas producer (one of those charcoal burning automobiles). They're a bit difficult to drive, and picking up a sack of charcoal to pitch into the tank before the flame goes out is a problem."

Training women for driving big buses, trucks, ambulances, and all kinds of vehicles has proved particularly valuable, she said. Even the car from Government House is operated by a woman now.

Australian households now have no servants because everyone works for war. Entertainment has taken a trend to simplification: no big parties, no full evening clothes, simple food, everything planned to save expense, labor and time.

The only clothing shortage in Australia at present is silk stockings, says Mrs. Evatt. Women solved that problem in the summer season just ended by going bare-legged. Australian women frown on uniforms unless they are necessary. They are going in for simpler clothes, but they're still feminine and attractive. Australia's woman of the hour is proof.

FINAL PRE-EASTER SERVICE IS HELD

Attendance Reaches 352 at Program for Students.

Dr. Harry L. Bell, pastor of Central Christian church, spoke on "God and Victorious Living," before an estimated 352 persons, largest attendance of the week at the last of four pre-Easter services this morning in Central Christian church. The services are annually sponsored by the Girl Reserve and Hi-Y organizations.

Dr. Bell said a youth, the living according to God, has a responsibility. He is able to enter life unimpaired and unaffected.

Jehovah of the present time is having a hard struggle to exist, he said, adding that, in trying to analyze why this is so, the reason seems to be that man has lost his faith in the living beings. The only way to regain that faith, he commented, is to rebuild belief in God.

He cited as an example of the result of man's cooperation with God a comparison between the American beauty rose and the ordinary, five-petal rose found along the road. He said the former is more attractive because of the united efforts of all of both God and man.

An organ prelude by Mrs. Bell opened the ceremony, followed by "This Is My Father's World."

a hymn, led by Mrs. Lee Schenck, of Marion, was given during the service. After the singing, Rev. Cleary gave a meditation on "Faith in Christ" in God.

A special offering, "Faith in God," was conducted by Star.

Mr. Bell closed the service.

Dr. Harry L. Bell, pastor of Central Christian church, spoke on "God and Victorious Living," before an estimated 352 persons, largest attendance of the week at the last of four pre-Easter services this morning in Central Christian church. The services are annually sponsored by the Girl Reserve and Hi-Y organizations.

Dr. Bell said a youth, the living according to God, has a responsibility. He is able to enter life unimpaired and unaffected.

Jehovah of the present time is having a hard struggle to exist, he said, adding that, in trying to analyze why this is so, the reason seems to be that man has lost his faith in the living beings. The only way to regain that faith, he commented, is to rebuild belief in God.

The program included a vocal duet by Mrs. Cleveland and Miss Klinge, accompanied by Mrs. E. L. Cleveland and reading of a letter by Mr. Herman Wohlschlegel from Mrs. Ward Hartman, missionary in China, thanking the guild for a birthday remembrance.

Mrs. Welch, Mrs. Sanderson and Mrs. Schneider were appointed a calling committee.

KEEPING CAKES

To keep a cake fresh and moist put an orange or apple in the cake box. By dipping a stale cake into cold milk and then rebaking it slowly, it can be refreshed.

Cake drops may be substituted for candied fruits to brighten cakes and puddings. And by adding a few drops of lemon juice to powdered sugar cake icings, they become very white.

Does Timidity Cause Your Voice To Fail? Maybe It's Psychophonasthenia

Science Finds That Shyness May Cause Prominent Persons To Start Choking When They Try To Talk.

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

World Science Editor
NEW YORK—If you are timid, or about taking risks, or about taking your voice off your voice, it may be that shyness is causing you to choke when you try to talk.

This is a newly-identified disease which causes pinched voice, choke, choked and irritated voices, is described by Dr. Greene, M. D., in the anatomology, rhinology and laryngology.

These things can happen to real causes, like colds, and diseases of vocal cords and other muscles. But Dr. Greene rejects a different disease, which takes a long time coming and which is purely mental.

It is moreover a malady of the upper crust in the mental scale, more likely among prominent persons, like singers, lawyers, teachers, clergymen, public officials, persons who have responsibilities for social events.

Typical Cases

Dr. Greene cites a case of an advertising executive who lost his voice when his senior partner died, and he had to take over direction of the firm. Another was a school teacher, timid all her life, who had to teach pupils nearly as old as herself, and whom she had difficulty managing.

An engineer developed the choking at 60 when faced with the possibility of a promotion he had long wanted, but which scared him a little. Another was a housewife whose husband contradicted everything she said until she hardly dared express an opinion.

These and many others with the same disorder, when examined medically, had perfectly normal and healthy vocal apparatus. They all had one outstanding characteristic. At heart they were shy, timid. Almost without exception the timidity had been inspired.

Marysville Speech Team in District Contest

Special to The Star

MARYSVILLE, April 2.—Members of the Marysville high school speech team will take part in the district tournament of the National Forensic League at Bowling Green Thursday, Friday and Saturday. It was announced today by George Ager, coach. The team won the state class "B" debate championship last year.

Students who will take part in the tournament are Joan Asman,

Mary Jane Wilcox, Lawrence Gabril, Betty Crothers, Judy Kingmore, Jean Jones, Fred Williams, Phyllis Augenstein, Ruth Ann McAllister, Edith Ager, Gene Glendinning and Edmund Augenstein.

The treatment is to get them to understand that their mental attitudes alone are the cause of the choking. This, Dr. Greene says, is difficult because they are so shy and their feelings so easily hurt. A good way to help them understand, he reports, is to have them write out their troubles and the physician's suggestions about the same.

SHERWOOD IGNORES POTATO CROP LIMIT

State To Increase Crop in Spite of AAA.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, O., April 2.—State Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood, saying he would ignore agricultural adjustment administration orders to reduce potato acreage at state-owned farms, declared today he intended to hike production by 10 per cent at the request of the war production board.

"The welfare department, like other agencies of state government in Ohio, is attempting to keep its pledge to cooperate fully with the request of the war production board for more food production by carrying out its program of increased acreage for potatoes and other food products," Sherwood said.

"However, the attempted limitations by the agricultural adjustment administration would thwart this effort. We believe that we are fully justified, therefore, in complying with the general program of increased production, and propose to ignore the attempt of county-located units of the AAA in curtailing production in individual counties, and to carry on the centralized program of increased production, in spite of this interference—both for the benefit of the war effort, and for the taxpayers of Ohio," Sherwood added.

Elmer F. Kruse, state AAA chairman, was out of town but an AAA spokesman said the organization was not trying to control nature by calling for decreased production per acre as reported by the welfare director.

Sherwood said nine state institutions produced 147,000 bushels of potatoes last year and would raise 10 per cent more this year if growing conditions were right. The department bought 53,000 bushels of potatoes in 1941 to meet institutional needs, Sherwood said, freight charges on the purchases amounting to $16,000 alone.

WAR OUTPUT

fused management, labor and the public, the WPB concentrate its efforts on breaking those bottlenecks which are, in the aircraft industry to the subcommittee's certain knowledge and probably in other fields, really holding up peak production."

Still Something Wrong

Reviewing the production of aluminum, the committee said that evidence gathered by its subcommittee "indicated there is still something seriously wrong in the light metals section of the war production board."

The committee said its investigation of ship building work disclosed "truly amazing" progress in erecting yards. It commented also that labor relations in the plants it visited were "excellent."

The committee found that employees in most west coast plants were working 48 hours a week, adding that "comments of several executives indicated that the overtime pay for the 8 hours over 40 was figured as part of weekly earnings—and that if it were eliminated, it might be necessary to increase hourly rate to provide approximately the same weekly earnings."

bases on the southern Philippine island of Mindanao, and military observers predicted today that the invaders would be attacked frequently by the thousands of native fighters hidden in thick and ebony forests of the island.

One raid was on the hamlet of Digos, 23 miles south of the main Japanese base at Davao. A small force of U. S. troops burned 22 warehouses of food, gasoline and ammunition, destroyed military equipment, and escaped to the forest of Cotabato, some 10 miles to the west, without losing a man.

The supplies were believed to be part of the stores the Japanese are accumulating for the drive against New Guinea and Australia. Units engaged were identified in the army's communiqué yesterday as merely "our troops."

Some 250 miles west of Digos, across the Moro gulf, a native Sulu unit fought to the heart of the important Japanese-occupied city of Zamboanga in a surprise raid. The Sulus destroyed several machine-gun nests, inflicted heavy casualties, and withdrew unscathed.

Native Fighters

Mindanao has thousands of miles of rough country where native fighters can mass for sudden attacks—mountains, swamps, and forests.

Military men pointed out that pressure by bush-fighters may immobilize large Japanese units for garrison duties. It also would detract from the Japanese drive farther north, where General Wainwright's troops have repulsed the newest attack on Bataan.

AUTO DRIVER FINED $100

Keith Blue of near Prospect, arrested by state highway patrolmen March 14, following an accident near Green Camp in which a car he was driving was involved, was later charged with operating an automobile while his driving license was revoked. He was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to five days in county jail. The jail sentence was suspended on the order of his doctor.

Some Hope Still Held for India War Effort Plan

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

Some hope that India might still be persuaded to accept the offer of dominion status was injected into the crisis today by British envoy Sir Stafford Cripps, who announced in New Delhi that "with good will we may be able to solve the difficulties."

Thus the world has an eleventh hour reprieve from a possible tragedy, which would be as much military as political.

Many readers are asking what is likely to happen if that unhappy position is reached. Well, the answer to that is rather difficult, especially when we are talking about a country so inflammable as India, but there are some things which stand out starkly. For instance:

Since the Indian nationalists have made cooperation with Britain in the war effort dependent on solution of their claims for independence, they presumably would return to passive resistance. This would create a grave weakness in one of the most important allied bases.

Non-cooperation would cut down the number of native troops available to Britain to stand off invasion. Moreover, it might affect the war industries and India is one of the great and strategically situated arsenals of the United Nations.

All this naturally would encourage the Japanese to try invasion, and they need mighty little encouragement. Should they be successful, it would create the possibility of a junction between them and Hitler in the Middle East—a nasty situation for the allies.

In short, it would represent a set-back of unpredictable proportions for the allies, and a corresponding victory for the axis.

Baby Arrives As Lifeboat Battles Atlantic Waves

By The Associated Press

NORFOLK, Va., April 2.—Cottage was the only necessity his mother and his doctor had when Jesse Roper Mohorovicic decided to enter this life Sunday night in a packed lifeboat plowing through darkness and 13-foot Atlantic waves. So they used much of it with success.

The eight-pound baby boy's birth amidst the rolling waves followed the torpedoing by an axis submarine of an American passenger-cargo ship on which Mrs. Desanta Mohorovicic, 28, of New York, was traveling. Three crewmen were killed and 29 other persons were still missing today but the mother, her baby and 87 other survivors reached Norfolk safely.

Young Jessie was born thirteen hours after the launching of the lifeboat carrying 24 persons. The mother, wife of an attaché of the Yugoslav consulate of New York, had then been in labor three of four hours.

Dr. L. H. Conly of Brooklyn, N. Y., ship's doctor, suffered from the fracture of two ribs received in a drop from the ship into the lifeboat.

He had no anesthesia and only the "simple instruments" of the lifeboat's medical kit.

A sail, only cover at hand—was stretched across one end of the lifeboat as a makeshift protection for the mother, and the job was done.

Jesse did his part by living out the next 24 hours until a rescue vessel came, cradled in a woman's turban and rocked beneath his mother's dress against the cold wind of the sea.

The infant, his mother and a two-year-old sister, Verna, were in a Norfolk hospital today, showing no ill effects from the experience.

The crew of the rescue ship and surviving passengers put together $210 and presented it to Mrs. Mohorovicic.

The doctor, who told the story to newsmen here, said of Mrs. Mohorovicic:

"She was a brave and lovely woman."

DURBIN ON VOTE BOARD

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 2.—Francis W. Durbin, Allen county political leader today was named by Secretary of State John Sweeney as a Democratic member of the Allen county board of elections. Durbin succeeds the late Ralph F. Lindemann to Delphos in a term ending March 1, 1946.

Many Buildings To Be Preserved

Ordnance Plant Developments

interested in the meeting, Mayor Share said.

Col. Huling, in announcing he had asked for such a meeting, pointed out that housing is the "immediate problem" and the one in which the community can best cooperate in the interests of the plant.

The war department, he said, is making continuing studies of the housing requirements for the plant, and some form of federal housing is expected to grow out of these.

Probably the first need will be for rooms as the construction workers start to arrive. Later, apartments and houses will be in demand as more workers come and some of them bring their families here. Still later, when the operation of the plant is begun, housing will be needed for persons employed in the plant.

Cooperation Asked

Pointing out that experience in smaller enterprises in cities of the approximate size of Marion has shown the housing problem is too large to be handled by local capital alone, he said, federal housing program probably will be set up, and in this connection he would ask the cooperation of the community.

"The war department appreciates the efforts of local capital and hopes it will do as much permanent construction as funds and the scarcity of materials will permit," Col. Huling said. "The war department wishes to cooperate with the people of Marion and wants their support in a program to meet the needs and fit such a program into the city's needs. Above all, the most important thing is to win the war."

"Firms enlisted to design the Selby Ordnance Plant buildings and to operate the plants will have the necessary technical ability to produce munitions, but we must provide the workers with suitable places to live to put the plant program across."

More Rooms Needed

He said there is already a scarcity of homes and apartments, but that the immediate need for rooms is being met by increased rentals. "However, vastly more rooms will be required than have been listed to date," he said. He added that the influx of workers has scarcely begun and that "we're just getting squared away to begin employment."

The problem of providing housing will be especially pressing because of the shortage of rubber, he pointed out. Whereas workers at such plants elsewhere have made daily trips of as far as 30 miles to and from work, the tire shortage will cut down long driving here. Housing facilities should be convenient to the plant, preferably within walking or bicycling distance, he said.

Limited dormitory accommodations will be provided on the plant grounds, but will not affect the general picture a great deal, he said. Also, a limited number of staff quarters on the grounds are planned.

Trailers Used

At other places, the need for temporary housing has been partially met with a special type of trailer that has conveniences approaching those of a house, Col. Huling said. If these are located at such plants elsewhere, he said, more new automobiles, purchased prior to the car-freezing order of Jan. 1, were issued at a tire rationing board meeting last night; the autos will go to:

Ohio Associated Telephone Co. of 107 South Main street, 2 truck tires and 2 tubes; Marion Reserve Power Co. of 198 South Main street, 2 truck tires and 2 tubes; Charles M. Zeigler, rural mail carrier, of 1191 East Church street, 2 passenger car tires; Earl F. Witmer, chemical engineer, of 106 South Main street, 2 passenger car tires; Earl Beets, farmer, of near Marion, 2 truck tires and 2 tubes; James B. Walter, farmer, of near Marion, one truck tire and one tube; Chad Herro, auto repairman, of 146 South High street, 2 truck tires and 2 tubes; Rev. O. T. Swigert of 443 Forest street, 2 passenger car tires; Richard C. Farish, contractor, of 321 South Prospect street, 2 truck tires; Wallace D. Stump, salesman, of 293 Windsor street, 2 truck tires and 2 tubes; Marion Hi-Speed Co. of 539 Silver street, 4 truck tires and 4 tubes; Marion Township trustees, one work road maintenance machine tire and one tube; Probst Supply Co., plumbers, of 204 East Center street, 2 truck tires and 2 tubes; Art Riley, trucker, of 903 Wilson avenue, 2 truck tires and 2 tubes; Russell Murry, farmer, of near Marion, one truck tire and one tube.

City Clerk Lew Shadaker said that no retreads were issued pending official instructions concerning them from the federal government. Four applications for passenger car tires and tubes were rejected; three were held up until next meeting; and two applications for the release of "frozen" cars were rejected by board action.

Only 15 of the school's 433 pupils reported for classes which continued today in spite of the walkout.

The strike started yesterday after School Superintendent Norman Kuntz announced that Henry, senior high school principal for 19 years, would be replaced next school year by M. D. Adams, 40, new principal of the junior high school here.

Students remaining away from the school attended classes for the second day carried through the business district banners, reading: "We want Henry."

Armand Carlucci, president of the senior class, said the pupils would not return until the school board agreed to its demands for a special school board meeting.

Only 15 of the school's 433 pupils reported for classes which continued today in spite of the walkout.

The strike started yesterday after School Superintendent Norman Kuntz announced that Henry, senior high school principal for 19 years, would be replaced next school year by M. D. Adams, 40, new principal of the junior high school here.

On the defense question, Indian nationalists argue on two broad lines—first, only an Indian could defend the natives of the Moslem League, the dominant minority voice.

Two lesser elements—the Sikhs, warriors of the Punjab, and the Mahasabha group of Hindus—already had given a definite "no" answer but Cripps intimated that if a formula could be worked out with the others they might reconsider.

SHOW BOAT GIRL

back the shoes, dark scarf that had been draped about her golden head, partially veiling her pallid face, and Melissa recognized her as Honoria Stevens, the Honey who had been in love with Jimmy. Melissa's heart contracted with a sharp little stab of pity as she saw the girl's pallid face, the great blue eyes that had been burned by tears until they had an empty, desolate look.

"Miss Stevens," she said, "and sat in bed, reaching for her little blue robe. "I'm terribly sorry."

"You needn't be," said Honey through her teeth. "Because what happened had nothing to do with you! I couldn't bear it if you should think yourself important enough to Jimmy to make him lift a little finger about you—let alone drive his car straight into a concrete post because you were going to marry somebody else."

Melissa felt as though the weight of Gibraltar has been lifted from her spirit. Her face lit up, her eyes widening.

Then—then—it wasn't because of me!" she stammered.

"Because of you!" Honey sneered, her savage young mouth a straight, thin line of hatred. "Jimmy laughed at you for a silly little fool. He wouldn't have married you if you had crawled to him on your knees, begging him to. It was me that he loved—we were going to be married. But we quarreled—we were always quarreling—just enough to make him wild and reckless. I know he shouldn't have driven home—I ought to have driven him—but I was angry—and I wouldn't offer—and know!" Her voice caught on a ragged sob, and for a moment she hid her pallid face in her hands.

"But Mrs. Marston said—" began Melissa hastily.

Honey flung up her head with a little gesture of disdain. "Mrs.

Marston thinks he did it because he was hurt about you—he won't believe anything else. I've tried to tell her that it was an accident—that he'd been drinking—that he and I had quarreled—but she won't believe me. It seems to make it a little easier for her if she can find somebody besides Jimmy to blame. But I couldn't bear it if you should think yourself important enough for Jimmy to kill himself over you! Because you were not—you couldn't be—not to Jimmy. Men like Jimmy play around with girls like you, but you're never really important to them."

Melissa stood beside the bed now, wrapped in her blue crepe robe, her feet thrust into silly little satin bedroom slippers. And her young face, framed by the tumbled ruddy brown curls, was radiant.

"It was pretty wonderful of you, Miss Stevens, to come and tell me this," she said simply, heartfelt gratitude in her voice. "It was almost crazy believing I had something to do with Jimmy—with his dying."

"I don't want your thanks," snapped Honey out of her heartbreak and tragedy. "I'm not concerned with anything you think or feel—except that I couldn't bear for you to think you were anything at all to Jimmy—except just a girl out of whom he got a lot of laughs."

She whirled, her voice shaking, opened the door and was gone, running, stumbling a little like one gone suddenly blind.

Shopping Trip

A few days later, on a sparkling spring morning that might have been lifted from a Northern June, Melissa was awakened early by a brisk tapping at her door. Wrapped in her blue crepe robe, her hair tumbling in lovely disorder about her sleep-flushed face, she opened the door to find Randy there.

His eyes lighted at the sight of her dewy, exquisite loveliness, and as she heard the little deep, caugh breath he drew before he could steady his voice enough to say "I've often wondered what you looked like when you first waked up. I couldn't believe you'd be even more beautiful than in the middle of the day, but you are!"

Melissa laughed, a soft little caressing laugh deep in her throat, and asked saucily, "Was that the reason you disturbed my slumbers?"

"No," said Randy, "though it's a perfectly swell excuse, come to think of it. But it just occurred to me all of a sudden that it's a perfectly swell day for a shopping trip to New Orleans—and we might take a look at the geggies this afternoon before we come back."

"A shopping trip?" Melissa repeated, puzzled.

Randy's eyes laughed at her, a laugh that caressed her and brought the warm, soft color to her cheeks.

"Well, I believe it's customary for a bride to have a wedding ring," he said mildly. "And it's even legal if a bride-to-be has an engagement ring. And I thought it might be nice if you had a hand in picking them out. And I do mean—sweet!"

He added the last words in a voice that was husky and none too steady as he cupped her chin between a thumb and forefinger, tilted her lovely head back and printed an ardent kiss upon her soft mouth, before he went away.

She dressed with her heart singing in her breast, it was surely the most glorious of worlds; and she was surely the most fortunate girl alive—to be young, to be lovely, to be loved by the one man in all her life who had ever so much as laid the shadow of his personality against her young, tremulous heart!

Red Fox Fur

Randy, waiting for her in the dining-room, looked at her, a little awed, and said straight from his full heart, "I don't believe it—you couldn't possibly be in love with me. No girl who looks as you do could possibly love a mug like me!"

"Want to bet on it?" asked Melissa, her voice shaken at gaiety. "And who are you calling a mug? I'd have you know, sir, that that 'mug' as you call him, is my favorite boy-friend!"

He held her close and hard against him and his voice, shaken and ardent and husky, said "My darling sweet—I'll try like the dickens to deserve you!"

The waiter came then with their breakfast and Randy let her go reluctantly. The waiter's dark face was split with a wide, white-toothed grin as he served them and departed.

Randy said, ignoring his orange juice to feast his eyes upon her. "I still don't believe you were ever a Mississippi lampighter. You're too beautiful, too smartly dressed."

Melissa laughed radiantly. "It's a trick," she told him cheerfully, "the looking beautiful. It's done with mirrors or something."

"I suspected as much," answered Randy, entering into the spirit of her gaiety. "Behind the disguise, I suppose you're simply an old bag—a likely thought!"

They ate their breakfast, not knowing whether it was sawdust or something more palatable and nourishing; and under a glorious blue sky, lit to gold by a radiant sun, they set out for the thirty-mile drive.

"It's the most perfect morning that was ever made," said Melissa happily.

"Glad you like it—I ordered it made specially for you," Randy assured her handomely.

Reaching New Orleans, they left the car in a parking lot and started down Canal street. Before a small fur shop they paused a moment. Only one object decorated the window. A red fox fur scarf of opulent beauty, so stunning that anything else the furrier could have offered would have suffered by comparison with its soft, shimmering, ruddy gold beauty.

Randy snapped his fingers and said, "I've been wondering what it was that you lacked—the thing necessary to make that costume complete. And now I know! Come along."

He turned toward the shop door, but Melissa put a swift restraining hand on his arm.

"Oh, no, Randy—it's terribly expensive—Randy, you mustn't!"

Randy stared at her, frowning resentful, almost a little angry.

"Expensive? Certainly it's expensive, because it's something really fine. So what? You're not going to deny me the pleasure of buying it for you, are you?"

COUNTY TRACK TEAMS PREPARE FOR OPENING MEETS FRIDAY

Triangular Meet Scheduled Tomorrow at Prospect; Possibilities Reviewed.

Providing the weatherman permits, Marion's relay teams will get off on the first leg of a 16-city track season at Prospect and Morral entertaining Brown township or Delaware county on a triangular affair on the Prospect road tomorrow afternoon at 2:30.

The races will be run off on the track and field relay coaches and athletic officials recently selected as the side of the 1942 county meet and relays.

Of the three teams entered in tomorrow's duals, the Prospect club has the most to protect. Only nine-year stretch Paul Keller-coached squad had racked up 38 straight and meet victories plus unassailable triangular meet wins. In addition the down-counties have won nine county track meets in a row and every county relay meet since its general adoption five years ago. Climbing the brilliant record the Keller-coached team last year raced through to capture the championship of the Central district Class B tournament. It was the first ever won by a Marion county team, either Class A or Class B. From this squad of champions nine were lost via graduation.

Veterans Lost

From this squad Keller lost Capt. Samouel Lauti, winner of both district mile and half-mile events; James Long, pole vaulter and weight man; Bud Edwards, hurdler, high jumper, and weight man. Other losses are William Shuey, Robert Williams, Robert Reynolds, Franklin Bush, John Ransome, and Tommie Baker.

Youths representing the nucleus of this year's squad are Co-captains Ralph Redmon and Everett Johnson, Robert Doddell, Carl Oehler, Earl Baedler, Robert Schmidt, Wayne Temple, Robert Ward, Loren Gatz. Other contenders likely to gain places on the squad are Donald Brock, Stanley Ruby, Charles Lanier, Cyril Oehler, Arthur Schoer, Charles Schmitz, Richard Isidor, Gerald Wilson, Stanley Hoover, and Junior Deiner.

Last week Prospect High school defeated an alumni squad 95-37 in probably the first outdoor meet held in Ohio so far this year. In winning by the lopsided margin Prospect exhibited strong Light Day: Pacific Coast league season opens today, and maybe we'll see what effect the war will have on baseball crowds in lead of just guessing. Assuming a shortage of baseball, as well as players and customers, the San Diego club will give two 20 cent defense stamps and a grandstand pass to each patron who returns a ball knocked into the stands ... but accepts no invitations to fight in Washington for the Navy Relief Fund came from Steve Bellone and Al Nettlow of the Jacksonville, Fla., Naval station. The Seaview club, where the P.G.A. tourney will be played, keeps a spray gun on exits for loaded with something to ward off those Jersey skaters.

Today's Guest Star—Shirley Povich, Washington Post: "We don't know whether it was scratches or Confucius who first said, 'Be nice to the people you meet on the way up because you may have to meet 'em again on the way down.' Anyway, Buck Newsom could have used that."

Silver Dept.—When the Giants and Indians played at Huntington, Miss., the other day, Zeke Bonura sat on the New York bench and took a dozen balls and one of Dick Bartell's bats back to Camp Shelby with him.

Don McNeill must have been pretty good as a tennis "good will ambassador" to South America. His new job in the navy intelligence department will take him right back there.

Latest Northwestern U. checkup shows 18 former Wildcat sports captains in the service. Most of them are officers, including Capt. Mortimer Marks of the marines, who was captured at Guam, and Bob Newman, who was recently cited in rescuing a seaman who fell overboard from a destroyer.

NEW YORK, April 1.—The Yale committee apparently is still busy trying to find a satisfactory football coach who is looking for a new haven.... Latest report is that Jess Neely of Rice, who has been visiting around his old South Carolina haunts, slipped away for a conference with the Yales.... The New York commission's decision on the Louis-Simon short count is about as easy to understand as the double talk local scribes accuse General Pyle of using.... Survey Made by Miami Prexy Shows Schools Favor Use of Freshmen.

By The Associated Press
COLUMBUS, April 2.—Ohio's colleges are putting more emphasis on athletics to keep students in peak physical condition in case they should be called to the armed forces or war industry. D. A. H. Upham, president of Miami university, reported to the Ohio Education Association today.

Upham, chairman of the association's committee on athletics, said a poll of Ohio colleges showed increased emphasis on physical education in 16 schools and no change in 11.

Those making changes reported they would not be at the expense of inter-collegiate athletics, he asserted, but one school suggested scheduling of games in a more limited territory to solve the transportation problem.

Several schools having physical education programs for freshmen and sophomores plan to add one or two more years to their schedule, Upham declared.

Other suggestions included more intramural games, he said.

Nine colleges opposed use of freshmen on varsity teams, 10 said they would use yearling players, two now use freshmen, three said "possibly" three stated they now hoped freshmen would not be used, and one was undecided.

Defending Champion and Byron Nelson Under Pressure in $5,000 Classic.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., April 2.—Again, because Belting Ben was the favorite and defending champion.

But it was not all concentrated upon him. Byron Nelson got a share, not only because he was favored back of Hogan but also because he was seeking to finish in the money for the 34th straight tournament.

Chandler Harper, newly named along with Chick Harbert to play in the Masters at Augusta, Ga., was set to keep intact his mark of finishing in the dough in every meet this year. Last Sunday, the Portsmouth, Va., pro barely squeezed into the money circle at Greensboro, N. C., tieing with two others for last place.

Some of the pressure was on the whole field, seeking to halt the little Texan who has swept the $5,000 event two years in a row, after finishing second to Dick Metz in the first tournament in 1938.

Last year Hogan needed 264 and beat out Lawson Little by a stroke. The year before he scored 273, three shots ahead of Ralph Guldsahl in second place.

Two Blind Teams To Appear on Drives

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., April 2—Ten boys from the Ohio School for the Blind will compete in the American Bowling Congress tournament tomorrow.

The youngsters, who have been using special alleys at the institution for seven years, will find special guide rails erected to lead them to the foul line.

Scores of 150 will be considered exceptional, in contrast to the high 200's rolled every day by the more fortunate.

The boys will include Joe Ullrich of Youngstown, Joe Winters of East Liverpool, Ray Fannion of Hamilton and Carl Curl of Lima.

Ohio booster teams continued to monopolize the alleys today. The alleys will be quiet between noon and 7 p. m. Friday, marking the ABC's first open schedule in observance of Good Friday.

1,500-Meter Event Added To List for First Time; Winners May Go to South America.

By The Associated Press
NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 2—Ten boys from the Ohio School for the Blind will compete in the American Bowling Congress tournament tomorrow.

The youngsters, who have been using special alleys at the institution for seven years, will find special guide rails erected to lead them to the foul line.

Scores of 150 will be considered exceptional, in contrast to the high 200's rolled every day by the more fortunate.

The boys will include Joe Ullrich of Youngstown, Joe Winters of East Liverpool, Ray Fannion of Hamilton and Carl Curl of Lima.

Ohio booster teams continued to monopolize the alleys today. The alleys will be quiet between noon and 7 p. m. Friday, marking the ABC's first open schedule in observance of Good Friday.

To obviate to the limit, the A.A.U. swimming committee headed by Larry Johnson of Boston, decided to add the 1,500-meter race to the program for the first time, and to run it off as the sole event this afternoon even though it means extending the championships an extra day. The long grind occupies a feature spot in the South American games.

Coché Bob Kiphuth's favored Yale squad which in recent weeks mopped up 15 of 22 individual and relay titles in the Eastern and National collegiate, appears to be in for some punishing opposition.

Yale makes its first title bid today when René Choueiri of St. Louis, Mo., the N.C.A.A. swimmers and divers in this country anxiously awaited today the start of the three-day National A.A.U. championships in Yale's gawky natatorium.

The lure of a probable trip to Ottie Jarrett of the Medina A.C. South Americans has provided an added incentive to the aquatics who have flocked here to compete for 11 titles, one more than usual.

The visitors are almost certain choices should the United States send a swimming team to Buenos Aires.

Capitain, are also expected to push Choueiri.

YOUR HEALTH

Painful Feet

PEOPLE who have bad feet usually get a sound view of the world and I can't say I much blame them. When your feet hurt, they hurt so much of the time that you can't even walk around to relieve them.

At any rate, when the patients arrive at the doctor's office, they are usually distinguished by having an A-I grouch. They have been led along various paths of dubious treatments with all sorts of hopes held out for them and no relief in the end.

They have been misled by all sorts of advertising aids, and semi-specialists and usually bring a bag of various kinds of arch supports and devices accumulated over the passing years. This eloquent remainder of past failures is put on the foot specialist's desk with a sort of attitude which says, "I dare you to try to give me some relief."

Has Many Complaints

The fellow with bad feet has both general and local complaints. He is fatigued, irritable and unhappy. His heel aches, pains shoot up from his ankles, or the discomfort may center entirely about the arch.

Obviously in handling these patients the specialist will take into account the general as well as the local condition. The patient doesn't always necessarily and inevitably need arches. Perhaps his condition is due to a life-long habit of walking badly. So the first step in the examination of such a patient is to get him to walk around and see how he does it.

His foot may be strained because something is the matter with his lower back, hip, knee or ankle joint, or because he has continued over a period of years to distribute his weight badly. Perhaps there is a history of strain on some part of his foot that makes him unable to bear that weight on it. The color of his skin is important, as well as signs of inflammation such as abscesses, blistered warts, callouses or bunions.

After this the feet are studied in relation to the weight-bearing function, and an X-ray is indispensable in disclosing painful bone conditions that are otherwise not clearly evident on physical examination. Not only shoes, but socks are checked for adequate size.

In the long run, however, the essential thing about most foot conditions is the use of proper shoes. Again, this means an individual adjustment of the shoe to the requirements of the patient. A shoe that may be all right for one person is by no means necessarily all right for 20 other people. The shoe must be adapted to function and to the anatomy of the foot. For the normal child, the shoes should have a well-rounded toe, the leather sole should be of adequate thickness and the shank sturdy but flexible. In children who are

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

While Madge Is Talking with Professor Diswell She Hears an Alarming Sound Beyond a Nearby Door.

YES, I have been married for a number of years," I told Professor Diswell, and he gave an appreciative nod.

"Jack is also married, is he not?" he asked, and I jerked to sudden wondering attention. The old scribe's memory must be failing, I thought, for Katherine had shown me years ago the beautiful piece of Georgian silver the professor sent them as a wedding present after they returned from France.

Becomes Suspicious

But it was not my place, I reminded myself, to refresh his memory, then as I murmured a casual "Oh yes, years ago," I wondered if it would be of any use to show the sheet of cryptograms in Jack Bickett's handwriting.

Another note of caution sounded in the back of my brain. Could we count upon the discretion of Professor Diswell, with his dulled perceptions and treacherous memory? And then, with a sudden start, I recalled the undertone of mockery in the demeanor of the sinister-looking gardener who had challenged my entrance.

Was that man perhaps in league with the gangsters in the armored car who had passed us on the highway, and who we had learned were also seeking the Diswell home?

I rebuked my imagination sharply, but I could not help a certain wariness in approaching the subject of the cryptic characters on the sheet of paper which I carried in my bag. In the picture my imagination had painted on my way to the old professor's home, I had seen myself bringing the paper immediately following the first enthusiastic exchange of greetings which I had been sure would follow my appearance.

But despite the fact that I realized "time was of the essence," with every minute bringing the gangsters nearer, I could not bring myself either to bring out the paper or to warn the old man that trouble, sinister and menacing were nearing his home.

Feels He Is Watching Her

I would wait a minute or two more, I decided, and guide myself by his actions and speech. But he appeared to be in no hurry to begin any conversation, and from somewhere — probably from my already overheated imagination — told myself scornfully — I suddenly realized the impression that he was watching me covertly.

overweight, with weak or pronated ankles, the shank should be stiff and necessary corrections made. For men with no special foot trouble the best shoe has a rounded toe, is of soft leather, with a thick leather sole of adequate length and width,

My impression might be correct at first, I reasoned the next second, using the premise that he had not recognized me when I addressed him. He had now only my word that I was Jack Bickett's cousin.

When he finally broke the silence, it was to put a masked question that might easily mean he considered me genuine, or just as easily that he was testing me.

"I have not seen or heard from Jack for years," he said. "I do hope this visit means that you bring me a message from him."

I sent him a mental "thank you." He had shown me a way out.

"I am sorry," I said, "but I have none. Neither his wife nor I have had any word from him for a long time. We are terribly worried about him, and finally I thought of you. I knew in the old days how close you were to Jack. In the studies he was pursuing, and I thought he might have written you of what he was doing now, in the time which always has so interested you. That is the reason I came here."

I started to my feet as I finished in a moment of stark panic. My chair was in front of a closed door, and from behind it came a queer, gurgling, choked sound, a terrible thing of pain and entreaty.

The Stars Say

For Friday, April 3

PERHAPS this day will indicate to definite, decisive and drastic action in all the affairs, business as well as personal. The sharp change may concern the interest or furthering of public relations or the welfare of collective, community or fraternal groups. Young and sentimental persons may have particular influence in current matters. All, however, are subject to duplicitous misrepresentation or trickery, and call for particular caution and discretion to avoid major dangers and attain the most ambitious ends.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year of sudden, drastic and decisive change or activities in which public welfare or community or social advancement are involved. Young and emotional people may be the subject of much high purpose and ambition. But all matters may be under a menace of fraud, deception, treachery or misconception, unless much discretion and vigilance be exercised. With precaution, gain, progress and happiness may loom in the personal and domestic or social field. Shun extravagance and show.
